STATESVILLE, NORTH CAROLINA, USA, August 13, 2014 / PRNewswire / Kewaunee Scientific Corporation (NASDAQ: KEQU), a recognized leader in the design, manufacture, and installation of laboratory, healthcare, and technical furniture products since 1906, today announced it had officially opened its first facility in China. The 10,000 square foot facility is strategically located in Suzhou Industrial Park in the general vicinity of Shanghai and also serves as Kewaunee's China headquarters.

The facility, which will primarily serve customers in the local China market, will be used as an assembly operation for products imported from the Company's other factories and for the stocking and distribution of Kewaunee fume hoods and safety cabinets. It also includes space for sales and project support staff, a product showroom, and a laboratory for SEFA and ASHRAE testing.

"We are extremely excited about our new Suzhou facility," said David M. Rausch, Kewaunee's Chief Executive Officer, who along with a number of other Company executives and local guests participated in the recent inauguration festivities at the facility. "China has been identified as one of Kewaunee's key growth markets, and this new facility, combined with an on-going expansion of our sales organization in the country, positions Kewaunee to build on its success in recent years in China. Our past business in China has included a number of government and private laboratory projects, including the prestigious Beijing Olympics drug testing laboratory. Also, many of China's current nuclear power plant test laboratories were provided by Kewaunee."
